

NODA welcomes new CEO as part of their international expansion

NODA's world-leading digital solutions for thermal AI are just right in time and the potential for energy efficiency in heating and cooling on a global scale is tremendous. To lead a continued international expansion, Tatiana Brandt is now welcomed as CEO. Former CEO and founder, Christian Johansson, takes on the role of Chief Strategy Officer and remains a board member and largest shareholder in the company.

Tatiana brings almost 20 years of experience in international experience in innovation, technology, product development and leadership. She has held senior positions in a number of start-ups, one of which became Norway's first unicorn. Tatiana has a deep understanding of what digital transformation means in the energy sector and industry. Prior to NODA, she was responsible for growth and transformation at Schlumberger and Microsoft.

"NODA really has a clear vision for its innovative and leading AI software," says Tatiana Brandt. "The advanced energy optimization solution enables customers and partners to accelerate the digitalization of energy systems and solve one of our biggest global challenges ahead of us. I am really looking forward to joining the team and leading NODA's growth."

Christian has developed a majority of the AI that forms the basis of NODA's solutions and will operationally now take on the role of CSO (Chief Strategy Officer) with a focus on strategic development of the company. He has for many years been active in the absolute international top tier in innovation regarding AI for thermal energy systems. Christian remains active as a board member and largest shareholder in NODA.

"NODA is in a very exciting phase and I see an extremely strong drive in the company's business. For me, it is a natural development of the company to now take this step. I look forward to welcoming Tatiana to NODA and working together with the international scale-up of our business", says Christian Johansson.

NODA has been one of the energy and real estate industry's leading innovators in thermal AI for almost twenty years. NODA is currently active in Europe, North America and Asia, and is now expanding in a global market financed through increased business, green loans and capital from existing investors.

"I welcome Tatiana to NODA. Her energy, personality and experience are exactly what we have been looking for. Now NODA is financed and properly staffed for its continued expansion. Christian as founder is involved in a new role, which means that the company gets even more power", says Håkan Eriksson, Chairman of the Board of NODA.
